Thanksgiving the Classic American Holiday

Thankfulness can be an abstract concept. Often our gratitude comes from random events, seemingly accidents and happy coincidences. Things happen, and we are thankful. Thankful for prayers, the kindnesses of strangers, family, and friends.

Sometimes success leads to gratitude, but it's more accurate to say that gratitude produces success. And ingratitude causes failure. This is a biblical theme, illustrated in the Book of Exodus. Shortly after God freed the people of Israel from slavery and brought them out of Egypt by parting the Red Sea, the people began to grumble at Moses*, "Would that we had died by the hand of the Lord in the land of Egypt, when we sat by the meat pots and ate bread to the full, for you have brought us out into this wilderness to kill this whole assembly with hunger" (Ex. 16:3).*

The people's feeble faith is the cause of murmuring; the complaint is hunger. The wilderness overwhelms them. They wallow in self-pity. But in the midst of their need and faithlessness, God offers His strength and sustenance. For one day at a time, and just enough for that day only, God provides manna. Yet the people are not satisfied. They beg for more, and God supplements the manna with quail.

God's provisions are always adequate, not indulgent, not a lack—just enough. There should be no waste. Nor should we be satisfied with over-supply. That breeds self-sufficiency, not faith. The wonderful thing about the desert was that everyone was supplied. God is always fair. It took a generation of wandering in the wilderness for the people's grumbling to stop. Only then, in a spirit of gratitude, were the people's hearts prepared to enter the Promised Land.

A little over 400 years ago, another group of people was looking to enter a new land. A group of devout Pilgrims crossed the Atlantic on an overcrowded ship, seeking the right to freely practice their faith and live their lives in accordance with their consciences, free from government interference. The small ship, called the Mayflower, was rife with disease, and many of the brave souls who had set sail never made it to the New World. Those who did make it endured even more suffering through a harsh winter, fallow crops, and other hardships.

The Pilgrims drafted a document known as The Mayflower Compact. This compact was the first attempt at self-government on the North American continent. It was also the document that served as the basis for the religious liberty enshrined in the U.S. Constitution. Over the course of human history, few people have had as much to be grateful for as the typical American does today. Our blessings are not just material; our nation enjoys the freedom to worship God as we see fit.

Thanksgiving is a day for our nation to pause and humbly reflect on the innumerable blessings God has granted us. Giving thanks to God bodes well for our nation's future. As George Washington stated when he recommended designating Thursday, Nov. 26, 1789, as a National Day of Thanks, it's a day that "we may then all unite in rendering unto God our sincere and humble thanks for his kind care and protection of the People of this Country."

Thanksgiving is unquestionably uniquely American. Other nations such as Canada, Liberia, and the Caribbean island-nation of Grenada also have official Thanksgiving days, but they are modeled after the classic American holiday. Americans of all persuasions, races, and creeds will gather with family around the table and give thanks, most of them to the Almighty, for the bounty they have received this year. The list of things for which we should be thankful could go on—both as individuals and collectively as Americans. Thanksgiving is a day we choose to live in gratitude, to thank God for His perfect provision, countless blessings, and His Son, Jesus Christ.

May the Lord bless you abundantly during this season of giving thanks,

Pastor Tom
